

In life, people die.

It is ok to talk about someone who had died, but it is important to do so with the appropriate people.

People who I can talk to about when someone dies, is my mom, my dad and my teachers at school.

It is important that when I do have questions or want to talk about it that I do it in a private place.

When someone dies, their family members can become very sad.

That is why when someone dies, it is important to talk to my mom, my dad or my teachers in a private place where no one else can hear my conversation.
